

Empowering Change, One Connection at a Time

Are You a Faculty Member, Staff, or Student at an MSI?

The American Phytopathological Society (APS) can enhance your work and research with scientific resources and a supportive community for life sciences related to plant pathology. The APS MSI Community, fueled by the generous John & Marie Sherwood Fund, aims to increase representation in U.S. graduate programs and organizations that employ plant pathologists so that our scientific workforce reflects the communities it serves.

John and Marie Sherwood, Fund Donors

Why Should You Join the APS MSI Community?

- Network and Collaborate: Connect with faculty and students working in life sciences related to plant pathology.
- Educational & Research Opportunities: Access valuable resources that promote research collaboration and educational advancement.
- Support Workforce Development: Share the challenges and needs of your institution and colleagues to help APS advance inclusion in plant pathology.

Visit apsnet.org/workforce to learn more!

*Together, we can foster inclusivity
in the plant pathology field and beyond.*